

LAST RITES FOR WM. SCHMUL, 81 HELD MON., JAN. 3

With the passing of Mr. William C. Schmul of Mokena, a citizen who was active in church and civic life has gone.

Mr. Schmul was born in New Lenox township March 28, 1867, the son of Henry and Minnie Schmul. He received his education in the New Lenox schools and farmed when he started to work.

August 23, 1888 he was united in marriage with Miss Alvina Hansen and together they continued farming in New Lenox. During that time, he served for nine years as highway commissioner, and many years as school trustee. He became a member of St. John's Evangelical church by confirmation in 1881 and later in life served as trustee of that church.

When they retired from farming he and his wife moved to Mokena where he made his home since. He served four years as village trustee of Mokena, trustee of St. John's church and of its cemetery.

After the passing of his wife, he moved to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harold Spies with whom he lived ever since. A few weeks ago he went to the home of his son Albert and brother Charles in Joliet, while his daughter Mrs. Spies was a patient in the hospital. Although not feeling well for some time, Mr. Schmul became suddenly seriously ill while in his brother's home and passed away there December 31.

Surviving are: three sons, Harry and Gilbert of Frankfort, and Albert of New Lenox; two daughters Mrs. Spies of Mokena and Mrs. George Schroeder of Frankfort; 11 grand children and 14 great grand children, and one brother Charles of Joliet.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon January 3 in St. John's Evangelical church in Mokena with Rev. William Riemann officiating. Burial was in St. John's cemetery.

Former Orland Boy Injured in Accident

Jack Lee, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lee, former managers of the Raschke's Bar-B-Q, at 159th and Keane avenue, was injured in a three-way collision about 7:40 o'clock Friday evening, December 31.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee have just purchased the Kohlman tavern at 159th and Cicero avenue in Oak Forest, and young Jack was on his way to Orland Park to get a party who was going to help them work at their New Year's celebration party. As he neared Central avenue going west on 159th street, a car pulled out in front of him. There was also a car going east at the same time, and about 300 feet west of Central avenue Jack's car struck the car in front of him and threw him in the path of the on-coming car where they collided. None of the cars overturned, but Jack was thrown out on the pavement.

The car going east was driven by a Mr. Dutko of Joliet. His wife and eight year old daughter were with him. The latter two were removed to Oak Forest Infirmary for first aid and later removed to Silver Cross hospital in Joliet.

Jack was also removed to the same infirmary where he received first aid and was later taken home. Dr. S. Leavitt of Orland was called and the next day he was removed to St. Francis hospital in Blue Island. X-rays were taken but the results were not known yet when going to press.

Jack, who is a student at Bradley university at Peoria, was home for the holidays.

SCHOOL ELECTION SET FOR FEB. 5

The meeting held in the Frankfort public school Tuesday night was largely attended and proved to be a friendly one. Most all school board members were present. Few questions were asked. County Superintendent of Schools Louis Bottino, explained the situation, which by this time should be quite well understood by all, through various meetings and publicity.

It was explained that the bond issue which was voted in New Lenox last year for a new school north of the Rock Island tracks would be dissolved if this consolidation is approved by the voters.

It is an important question to consolidate or not. The impression received is that the people are somewhat dubious of the issue. Everyone seemed willing to approve of a unit high school for this area, some do not.

On the other hand, we do know that schools of one room, and a few pupils should be revised so as to give all pupils an equal advantage.

The date of election for the area of New Lenox, Frankfort and north two-thirds of Manhattan was set for February 5. There will be a polling place in each incorporated village and in some rural areas also. This will be announced later.

March of Dimes Drive Opens January 14

The 1949 March of Dimes campaign will swing into line throughout the nation Friday, January 14 and will continue to the end of the month.

Albert A. Morey, general chairman of the drive in Cook county, urges everyone to give at least 50 per cent more this year because of the record polio epidemics last summer and the soaring costs of the care and treatment of patients.

"This annual appeal is the sole source of funds through which the Cook county chapter and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis can carry on the fight against polio," said Mr. Morey.

He revealed that every March of Dimes committee has been organized with plans geared so that residents of all communities in the city and suburbs in the county will have ample opportunity to back the drive against infantile paralysis.

"As we near the opening date of the 1949 March of Dimes," Mr. Morey said "let us bear in mind that each and every one of us has a stake in this humanitarian work."

"During the past six years more than 100,000 fellow-Americans have been stricken by polio. This disease is on the increase in the United States. We do not know where or how severely it will strike in this area the coming summer. So we must prepare now for any eventuality. I am sure we in Cook county will meet the challenge."

He pointed out that hospital costs have risen 10 to 12 per cent in the last year and made clear that even if the cost of hospitalization had remained constant, the backlog of cases in this area still requiring treatment are causing a continuous drain.

He said that infantile paralysis is one of the most costly diseases known to medicine.

"Some cases require round-the-clock attention, day after day, for weeks on end," Mr. Morey stated. "Countless pieces of expensive equipment are used in fighting the disease, ranging from hot pack machines costing about $300 each to respirators listed at approximately $2,000.

"Of course, there is no way to estimate the cost in pain and suffering but by going all-out in the 1949 appeal we can assure polio patients of a real chance for the future."

In its report for the last fiscal year, the Cook county chapter revealed that it assisted 755 persons in meeting the cost of medical care. 561 of whom were stricken in former years, many even before the foundation was organized. Some 270 polio patients were hospitalized. More than 100 were placed under out-patient orthopedic supervision, while 309 were supplied with appliances, braces, wheel chairs, and shoes.

The incidence of the severe bulbar type of the disease, needing respirator care, was greater in 1948 than the preceding year, according to Chapter records.

Two things that loom as certainties for the future, Mr. Morey emphasized are increasing responsibilities to polio patients and increasing costs of medical care.

Cook Co. Assessor J. S. Clark Urges Workable Tax Laws

Cook County's 30 country townships enjoyed their most prosperous post-war year in 1948, and continued business and residential growth is indicated for 1949, County Assessor John S. Clark today declared in a review of his office's activities for the past 12 months.

"Early in 1948 we completed the 1947 quadrennial real estate assessment in which land and buildings in the 30 townships were valued at $1,274,958,755, an increase of more than 250 million dollars over the 1943 Quadrennial," Clark declared.

The entire county, including Chicago was valued at $5,841,108,641 more than a billion increase over 1943.

Clark stressed the fact that inflationary prices did not affect his valuation of real estate in the county.

The 1948 personal property assessment for the country townships was $222,347,143, an increase of about 11 million dollars over 1947. The county total was $1,358,335,611, a 37 million dollar increase.

Although comparative figures are not available, industrial growth in the country townships was probably higher in 1948 than in 1947. In the country townships 126 permits calling for $10,756,150 worth of new construction were received by the assessor in 1948.

"More building materials were available in 1948 than in previous post-war years," Clark said. "This undoubtedly led to increased industrial construction throughout the county."

Residential building increased greatly in the country townships. In 1948, residential building permits totalling 18,006 were received. This is an estimated 4,000 increase over the 1947 total, Clark said.

Industrial and residential permits were not counted separately in 1947 because of the amount of work involved in the quadrennial assessment, Clark explained.

The county's farms were highly productive with 3,773 farms reporting 241,512 acres of tillable land in use according to the crop census compiled yearly by the assessor.

Cook county with 23 different kind of crops is one of the most diversified and fertile farm areas in the state, Clark said. Leading crops were corn, oats and truck garden.

Clark recalled that in 1948 practically nothing was done to clean up delinquent taxes on real estate property in the county.

"Delinquent property costs the county well over a million dollars every year," Clark stated. "And at the same time back taxes tie up property that could be available for more housing."

He blamed the county's unwieldy tax laws which make it practically impossible to obtain a clear title to delinquent property and urged the passage of workable tax laws.

A survey by his office in 1948 revealed that more than 39 percent of all real estate in the country township of Calumet was delinquent.

When the Farm Journal formed a National Corn growing contest in the spring of 1948, a Mokena man Mr. Van Lee Shaw, entered it, and came out sixth high.

In this contest 38 states were represented by 250 farmers with varied corn and methods. Mr. Shaw was the only one who planted in the open row method. He also paid special attention to fertilizing this year.

This contest is for three years and the goal is to produce 300 bushels per acre.

Mr. Shaw, whose farm is south of Mokena just east of Wolf road, planted 15 acres in corn and entered one of those acres in this contest. He had an idea, and put it into effect, that if he planted two rows of corn and then skipped two rows, that the plants would each receive the same amount of sunshine, and more sunshine.

This proved to be true and resulted with the stalks growing heavier, not so tall, with almost no leaves nearer the top, but the ears of corn were larger and uniform ranging in weight from 11 ounces to 1 1/2 pounds. Out of the planted 3,999 stalks, 3,902 bore ears, making only seven barren stalks.

After the corn was harvested, the Wheeler McMillan, publisher and editor of the Farm Journal entertained the 250 farmers at a banquet in the Union League Club of Chicago at which time the results of the contest were announced. Mr. Shaw won sixth place by having 215.03 bushels to the acre at time of picking and when reduced to No. 2 corn basis, it simmered down to 186.6 bushels.

Life-long Frankfort Woman Died Dec. 31

Mrs. Alvina Lühring, 66, passed away in her home in Frankfort Friday evening, December 31. For the past two years Mrs. Lühring had been ill at times seriously and in the hospital, but for some time past she had been feeling much better and able to enjoy life.

Friday evening, she and her husband Henry Lühring, enjoyed visiting in the home of her sister, Mrs. Harry Fitzer, New Lenox, and was apparently quite well. She passed away in her sleep that night and was discovered by her husband in the early morning.

Mrs. Lühring was born December 17, 1882 in Frankfort township and lived there all her life. In 1905 she was united in marriage with Mr. Henry Lühring and together they farmed for nine years, when they moved to the village of Frankfort where they have lived since.

Surviving beside her husband are three sisters, Mrs. William Delst, Frankfort; Mrs. Carl Bettenhausen, Joliet and Mrs. Fitzer, New Lenox.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon, January 3 in the St. Peter's Evangelical church in Frankfort, with the pastor, Rev. Erich Bizer, officiating. Burial was made in Pleasant Hill cemetery.

On Sunday afternoon the Royal Neighbor Camp No. 6036 of Frankfort of which Mrs. Lühring was a member, held a memorial service in her late home, with Neighbors Hattie Baumgartner, Blanche Mitchell, Phyllis Harnack in charge, assisted by the Graces.

Miss Faye June Oetter sang "Abide With Me" and Neighbor Pearl Oetter offered prayer. At the church services the next day, Miss Oetter sang, "In the Garden" and "

WARNS OF HEALTH DANGERS IN HUGE SUBURBAN AREA

The 125,000 people who have moved to suburban Cook county in the last eight years pose a serious health problem for the County Board, and it is one which must be solved immediately, according to the Committee on the Chicago-Cook County Health Survey.

The committee, which is sponsored by the Council of Social Agencies of Chicago, observed that the budget of the Cook County Department of Public Health for this year is only $146,000, well under 25 cents per capita for the 800,000 persons now living in the suburban area. A rule of thumb gauge of health protection machinery for modern living is $1 a head.

That fact alone indicates the need for a substantial increase in the 1949 appropriation, said Miss Mary Murphy, chairman of the health division of the Council and director of the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial Foundation. Even when local expenditures are added to those of the county, she said, the sums spent for suburban health protection are far below the level of adequacy.

Three factors other than the total population intensify the need for additional health facilities. They are:

1. The peculiar geography, due to the fact that the 800,000 are now scattered in a rough half-moon some 50 miles long draped around Chicago's borders, making proper coverage difficult and requiring extra personnel than would otherwise be the case.

2. The fact that normal growth of the department, which was established only in 1940, has been stunted by war shortages, so that it has never had sufficient personnel and facilities.

3. The fact that much of the recent suburban home building has been done in unincorporated areas, which lack community water and sewerage systems and other services, with consequent greatly increased danger of infection.

"So far the combination of good luck and the tremendous exertions of the present staff of the department, headed by Dr. Edward A. Piszczek, have kept these areas free of epidemic disease," said Miss Murphy, "but eventually lack of proper medical and nursing supervision, of health and nutrition education, and of adequate sanitary inspection, is bound to catch up with even so effective an organization. Only the County Board can help and that will be by appropriating sufficient funds immediately to build an adequate health department for the whole area."

"It is still incomprehensible that a community of 800,000 persons, which would be about the 10th largest in the nation, if it were one municipality, should be without modern health protection today."

Different Scalloped Potatoes

The next time you make scalloped potatoes, try making them with sour cream for the liquid. Line the dish with slices of cold cooked ham, then add layers of raw or cooked sliced potatoes and onion rings. Pour sour cream over the top and dot with cheddar cheese. Good? Mmm—!

Have a Ham Roll!

Ham with a new flavor results in a rolled ham slice with apple stuffing. Have ham slice cut 1/4 inch thick and remove bone. Spread with mixture of 1 teaspoon dry mustard and 1 tablespoon vinegar, then top with 2 apples thinly sliced. Roll, with the fat side in, and skewer together. Then bake, covered, about 45 minutes.

A timely reminder to school children to "Cross Only at Corners" is carried in traffic safety posters being distributed by the Chicago Motor Club for January display in 44,000 elementary school classrooms throughout its Illinois and Indiana territory. Lesson sheets to elaborate this theme for various age groups highlight the urgency of crossing only at corners during the winter season of poor visibility and unreliable stopping ability of motorists. The poster is one of a series of winners in a national poster contest for high school students conducted annually by the Chicago Motor Club and affiliated organizations of the American Automobile Association.

Plan House Around Family, Not Fashion Says N. U. Expert

So you're going to build a house! Well, before consulting an architect or looking over dozens of available blueprints, heed the sound advice of a home planning expert at Northwestern University: make the house secondary to the family unit.

Mrs. Dorothy Clark Bohnen, instructor in home-planning in the home economics department, warns against selecting a home just because it would be as elegant as the Joneses' down the street, or in a period of architecture which is currently fashionable, just because it is fashionable.

Expert Bohnen, in teaching Northwestern coeds the basic principles of home planning, tells them that other than family income and the occupation of the head of the house, the following factors should be considered: family history, possessions and interests of the family; extent of home entertaining; cooking and dining interests and needs; home requirements of individual family members; the use of the home by others than the immediate family, such as weekend guests; domestic help if any; and gardening, pets and garage facilities. Even the family's stored-up pet peeves and hidden longings deserve consideration in home-planning, she asserts.

Along with satisfying the physical, cultural, and recreational needs of the family unit, the house should also reflect the inhabitants' heritage. Rather a home which expresses the family's national characteristics, such as Scandinavian, Celtic, etc., than one which merely copies an attractive dwelling designed for someone else and illustrated in the magazines and Sunday supplements, Mrs. Bohnen insists. A wife should make the needs of her husband and children paramount in home-planning decisions, not her own expression of vanity, Mrs. Bohnen advises.

Suppose the husband is a traveling salesman, away from home a great deal. He is not as likely as a clergyman to need a study as an integral part of the house.

Take the matter of books. Some families buy them as part of the interior decor, for their colors and beautiful bindings. Other families, to whom reading is a real part of daily living, need a different sort of library set-up, one which lends itself to good lighting, appropriate arrangement of furniture, and shelf after shelf for ready access and filing.

If it's for a family of music lovers, perhaps the projected home would have to be constructed with a special room having fine acoustics. Maybe the music facilities, instead of being part of the house where all the family congregates, should be isolated, in order not to disturb the one member who, indifferent to Beethoven likes to paint or draw without the disturbing bass notes of a symphony concert.

In her teaching, Mrs. Bohnen utilizes a wide variety of graphic charts, one of which illustrates the problem of family dining habits in their relation to home-building. "Dog wagon" meals may spread from one room to another; polite meals usually are confined to one room; "occasions," such as buffet suppers, teas, etc., also would extend from one room to another; and garden dining would extend from the lawns into still more areas of the total home.

What about children's play? If yours is the type of family which doesn't mind having youngsters play all over the house, style your home for such a zazzle-dazzle. If, on the other hand, yours is the kind of family which prefers to rear children in their own play quarters, keeping "adult" sectors of the dwelling free from tricycles and construction sets, be sure to include adequate play space, perhaps in the basement or in a special room for the purpose. If it's a family whose adult members are ping-pong enthusiasts, or devotees of other games which classify as "rumpus," be certain to make provision for such group activity when you plan your house.

Auto Accidents Higher in 1948

For the first eleven months of 1948, motor vehicle accidents in Illinois occurred at a rate of 10 per cent higher than during the similar period in 1947, according to a report by the division of highways office of safety responsibility.

During the period covered by the report, 36,025 persons were required to deposit security to cover damage resulting from auto accidents. This represents an increase of 17 per cent over the corresponding period in 1947. The total amount of security required was $11,293,000.

For Veal Steak

A good braising liquid for veal steaks is mushroom soup. When the steaks are tender, thicken the liquid and serve as gravy.

Wheat should be checked in the bin or granary for sweating and insect populations. If insects are present, the grain should be fumigated to kill them.

Chlordane, the new insecticide, is about equal to DDT in toxicity to mammals.

Four Eclipses in the Heavenly Schedule in 1949 Says Astronomer

American observers of eclipses will have to be satisfied with moon-gazing during 1949, K. A. Gunnar Strand, professor of astronomy and director of Dearborn Observatory at Northwestern university said.

Four eclipses have been scheduled by the Solar system for next year, he explained, two solar and two lunar. However, United States residents won't need dark lenses or bits of smoked glass, because the eclipses of the sun won't be visible from this country at all. Both will be partial obscuring, and possibly won't even attract the attention of researching astronomers anywhere in the world.

As for the lunar eclipses, here are the data: a total eclipse of the moon will occur on Tuesday, April 12, at 9:28 p.m., Central Standard Time, to continue until 10:54. Another will take place on Thursday, Oct. 6, at 8:20 p.m. CST, totality to last through 9:33. Just for the record, these are the facts on the solar eclipses: on April 23 maximum coverage of the sun, 61 per cent; Oct. 21, maximum obscuration, 96 per cent.

Improvements for State Fair Grounds

An immediate start on a number of improvements at the State fairgrounds in Springfield, provided funds are available, was recently recommended in a report submitted by the Illinois State Fair Advisory board.

The projects listed for early attention include an enlarged electric substation, additions to the swine, sheep, and goat pavilions, new cattle and harness horse barns, improved sewer and drain systems, road resurfacing and grading, and underground conduits.

In the long range program are recommendations for a complete overhauling of the fairgrounds electrical system, surface treatment of all secondary roads, grading, paving and drainage of about one mile of main avenues, a new main entrance, lowering of the race track infield, resurfacing of the track, a new judges' stand, a paddock building, and a new agricultural building.

The advisory board is composed of Senator Simon E. Lantz, chairman, S. J. Campbell, Earl C. Smith, Senator Dennis J. Collins, Dean H. P. Rusk, Porter Fox, J. R. Fulkerson and E. A. Eckert.

Have you noticed a fly around your house? And did you kick up a rum-pus? Ten years ago you wouldn't have started to kill the flies until hundreds of them laid siege to your house.

In Remembrance

Lesson for January 9, 1949

JESUS OF NAZARETH was the Unforgettable Man. All our information about him as he lived in Galilee comes from four small booklets known as the Gospels. There was a little more about him in the letters of Paul, and a few additional sayings of his have been preserved in papyrus fragments in Egypt. But the main source of our historical knowledge of Jesus is in these four Gospels. All put together they do not make a big book; but any one of them by itself is a great book.

Who Remembered Him?

IT BOTHERS some people to discover what scholars have always known, that our Gospels as we have them are based on earlier writings and spoken traditions. But this gives us an even better reason for trusting the reliability of these records. They were not made up for the first time a generation or more after Jesus' resurrection. They go back to the lifetime of thousands who personally knew Jesus.

The farther back scholars can trace the origins of the Gospels, the more historically reliable they are proved to be. Some of the information worked into our Gospels came from personal reminiscences; this is the case with large parts of Matthew and John. In the case of Mark, the early story in the church was that as a young companion of Peter on missionary journeys, Mark jotted down the stories which Peter told about Jesus.

At any rate the Gospel of Mark contains just the sort of things that a man like Peter would be likely to remember. Luke himself, a missionary doctor and great friend of Paul, never knew Jesus personally, but lived for two years in Palestine and gathered the materials for his Gospel while there were still hundreds of people there who remembered Jesus well.

What They Remembered

JOHN tells us that it would be impossible to write down all that was then known of Jesus' life. Out of the 400 days (at least) during which Jesus' public ministry lasted, not over 40 are recorded, even in part.

Yet what these men did recall and record is enough to reveal a matchless Person. A fifth Gospel might enlarge our knowledge of Jesus; but it would not greatly change it. Jesus never wrote a book, not even a letter so far as we know; yet such words of his as were remembered have influenced the world.

Jesus' entire public ministry lasted a shorter time than it takes to go through college; yet what he did had a deeper effect on the world than the work of any university graduate in history. Jesus started no corporation, no formal organization; yet out of his fellowship have grown the greatest institutions in the world.

Why They Remembered

THE STORY of Jesus was remembered and recorded by his followers partly because they could not help it. They could not forget him and did not want to forget him. One thing is true of all those who lovingly cherished these memories of the Master: they loved and adored him.

No unbeliever ever wrote a Gospel. Pilate wrote no life of Christ. Even if Judas had lived, he could not have written one. Our Gospels were written by men of faith, for the purpose of calling out faith in others. "These things were written that ye may believe that Jesus is the Son of God." (John 20:31).

In one sense of the word we could write a better Gospel now, for today 19 centuries of Christian experience are behind us, and those centuries are full of the doings of Christ through his church. The four Gospels tell us of what Jesus did in Galilee. But now we can tell the story of what Christ has done in Africa and Greenland and Australia and America. Reading the Gospels is interesting, it is important; but the reading has not hit the bull's-eye if it leaves you, the reader, merely better informed than you were.

Your Income Tax

John T. Jarecki, Collector of Internal Revenue for the First District of Illinois

AMENDED ESTIMATES

Any taxpayer who has reason to believe that he or she has substantially under estimated his or her income tax for the calendar year 1948 should consider the filing of an amended declaration before January 15, 1949.

A tolerance of 20 percent of the amount of the actual tax is allowed for taxpayers other than farmers. Farmers are allowed a tolerance of 3.33 percent of the actual tax. This means that a taxpayer other than a farmer must have estimated and paid an amount equal to or in excess of 8 percent of what the correct tax will be on his final return. A farmer must have estimated and paid an amount equal to 66 2-3 percent of what the tax will be on his final return.

Failure to file an estimate and pay this tax on or before January 15, 1949, invites a severe penalty. There are separate penalties for failure to file an estimate and failure to pay the estimated tax on the due date. The law also provides a penalty for substantial underestimation of the tax.

These penalties, however, can be avoided in three ways:

1. If the original estimates are based on the amount of the previous year's income and the tax is computed under the law applicable to the current year, no penalty for underestimation may be imposed.

2. An amended estimate may be filed on or before January 15, 1949 increasing the estimate to 80 percent of the actual tax, or in case of a farmer's return to within 66 2-3 percent of the actual tax.

3. A final return for the year may be filed on or before January 15, 1949 in lieu of an amended estimate.

In each case 80 percent, 66 2-3 percent in case of farmers, of the tax for the calendar year must be paid by January 15, 1949.

Litter in the poultry house provides the best insulation when it is fairly deep. It must be kept dry and must be stirred regularly.

Illinois TAX FACTS

By George J. Mahlin, Executive Secretary
Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois

Should the 100 percent assessment laws be repealed?

The Executive Board of the Illinois Association of Supervisors and County Commissioners has adopted a resolution calling for the repeal of the 100 percent assessment laws, following similar action by a number of county boards throughout the state.

Under the 100 percent assessment laws, the State Department of Revenue is charged with the responsibility of comparing the prices at which real estate has been sold with the assessed valuations placed on that real estate by the local assessors, to find out at what percentage of full value real estate has been locally assessed on the average in the county. After determining that percentage, the State Department of Revenue then certifies to the County Clerk a multiplier which the County Clerk must apply to all property, real and personal, to raise it to so-called 100 percent value. For example, if the State Department of Revenue finds that real property has been assessed in a county at an average of 25 percent of full value, then a multiplier of 4 is certified to the County Clerk.

According to the Supervisors and County Commissioners, real estate and personal property do not fluctuate in value at the same rate. Application of the same multiplier to personal property assessments that is determined from and applied to real estate assessments results in inequity.

The Supervisors and County Commissioners also base their action on the fact that the Board of Review in each county has adjourned before the Department of Revenue certifies the multiplier for that county. Therefore, although the taxpayer has the right to protest his local assessed value before the Board of Review, he does not know at that time what the "100 percent value" will be. He may be satisfied with his local assessment, and make no protest, but then be very dissatisfied with his "100 percent value" and have no opportunity to protest that.

They also say that taxation beyond the needs of certain taxing bodies has resulted from the 100 percent assessment laws and that a great burden has been placed on many taxpayers as a result.

Therefore, the Illinois Association of Supervisors and County Commissioners and a number of individual county boards are on record as urging the repeal of the 100 percent assessment laws, "and that local taxing authority be returned to the locally elected officials who are responsible and responsive to the taxpayers and electorate of their respective districts."

The Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois opposed the enactment of the 100 percent assessment laws in 1945. However, now that the 100 percent assessment laws have been in effect since January 1, 1946, the situation has drastically changed. The Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois is thoroughly convinced that repeal of the 100 percent assessment laws now would mean a disaster for taxpayers throughout the state.

Next week: The 100 percent assessment laws should NOT be repealed.

Washington Digest Presidential Inaugurations Are Mostly Circumstantial

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—"The King is dead, long live the King."

Thus the ancient rite proclaimed a new sovereign who "by the grace of God" must take up the scepter. At once a hundred pairs of hands are busy preparing for the coronation. Courtiers and commoners, the noble masters and mistresses or ceremony, seamstresses and workmen, knights and stable boys, each trained to his task begin their work for the great event.

Form and program may differ, but where kings and emperors reign, the ceremony, according to the stern law of tradition, seldom varies in any but the smallest degree.

Only a cataclysm can effect a change. I heard about my first coronation when I was 12 years old.

BAUKHAGE

I remember it for two reasons, one being the fact that it almost didn't come off. On the very eve of the ceremonial day, the heir to the throne fell ill. All celebration was called off. And then on the day after the event was to have taken place, as the nation waited anxiously to hear the fate of its sovereign-to-be, a shocking and ludicrous thing occurred.

One of the country's leading newspapers came out with a report of the coronation, mentioning even minor details just as if it occurred (and just as it did occur later).

This journalistic faux-pas was forgotten by most people outside of the profession, but I was to be reminded of it when I went to work on a rival newspaper in London many years later and heard the tale retold as a grim warning to pressmen and journalists.

The editor of the erring journal didn't think he was taking much of a chance. He knew the coronation program never varied from the reign of one sovereign to another. Up until that time, I suppose, no English king had ever been rash enough to become ill and change the program.

As a matter of fact, I didn't take the warning seriously. Later I was able to insert much color in my report of the wedding of a royal German princess by the simple expedient of translating a story of the nuptial ceremonies of her brother which had appeared in a Berlin newspaper some years before.

But no one could attempt to write up the inauguration of an American President from the account of a previous ceremony. A mere two centuries is short enough in a nation's history, to be sure, but many changes have taken place in our habits and customs since George Washington took over the presidential oath of office.

It is said that George Washington never considered himself America's first President, never referred to himself or was referred to by his contemporaries as such, since others served before him under the first constitution. The United States was already a nation, recognized as such by the presence of foreign ambassadors on April 30, 1789, the day Washington took the oath of office.

The position of the previous "presidents" was largely honorary and not filled by popular vote, and when the day came to invest Washington with the new powers, there was no precedent, no set of rules to follow.

New York was the capital, and General Washington set out from Mount Vernon to New York on the long journey which turned out to be a spontaneous tour of triumph with a reception at every city along the way.

There was no dearth of ideas as to the social program. A flower-bedecked barge, accompanied by a whole flotilla of private craft, carried the President-Elect across the Hudson, and he was winned and dined and welcomed with gaily-bedecked guards of honor surrounding him.

But when it came to the actual ceremony, a deadlock occurred. The senate argued for an hour as to whether it should receive the new chief executive seated or whether the members should rise. Indeed, they might be talking still if the house of representatives had not suddenly appeared. Washington then entered the building with due pomp and finally was led to an outdoor balcony where the crowds of Broad street witnessed his oath.

That part of the ceremony—the taking of the oath out of doors—is now an established precedent, although it was either forgotten or ignored until James Monroe's day. The chamber of the senate or the house where it took place until Monroe's time was, however, usually open to as many of the public as could find room.

Circumstance has contributed to variations in the program. Besides the moving of the capital in the early days, there have been the cases of death in office. Five times a President has taken the oath without the usual ceremony for this reason. President William Henry Harrison came into office as a hardy military hero, and, scorned a carriage, rode bare-headed to the Capitol on horseback. A month later he died. Vice-President John Tyler was in Williamsburg and did not reach Washington until two days after the appointed date. Tyler took the oath on April 6, 1841, in Brown's hotel in the presence of members of the cabinet.

The next emergency installation took place when Andrew Johnson took the oath in the Kirkwood hotel a few hours after Abraham Lincoln had died from an assassin's bullet. The first time that a President was sworn in away from Washington since it had become the nation's capital was when Vice-President Chester Arthur took the oath in his own home in New York City shortly after the news came of President James Garfield's death at Long Beach.

When President William McKinley was shot at the Pan-American exposition, Vice-President Theodore Roosevelt hurried to Buffalo in time to take the oath in the home of Ansley Wilcox on the same day the President expired. And most of us are familiar with the scene in the little Northampton home where by lamplight a father, as the witnessing notary, took the oath of his son, and Calvin Coolidge succeeded Warren Harding who had passed away a few hours before in a San Francisco hotel.

When Franklin Roosevelt died at Warm Springs in 1945, Harry Truman took the oath in the White House executive wing. This was "public" in the sense that the door to the little office was open, and photographers and newsmen, this one among them, looked over each other's heads from the crowded corridors.

Some Variations Took Place

Another circumstance has affected the procedure of the accession to office. Because of the variability of the calendar, March fourth has four times fallen on Sunday. Until Woodrow Wilson took the oath on Sunday, March 4, 1917, in the President's room in the Capitol, no President had ventured to keep the law and violate the Sabbath.

President Monroe on succeeding himself had announced simply that he would take the oath on Monday, March 5. In 1849, the same thing occurred in the case of President Zachary Taylor. But for some reason, President Rutherford Hayes actually became President before his time. He was secretly sworn in on Saturday, the third, the ceremony being repeated on the fifth in public.

For some years it has been considered necessary for an outgoing President, if there is one, to take part in the ceremony. His presence has been as much expected in the carriage or automobile which carries both men to the Capitol as the President-Elect. This was not always so, and both the Adamses made it a point to absent themselves, the former leaving the city before the ceremony, and the other taking a horseback ride at the moment when the guns boomed out the salute to his bitterly-hated opponent.

Perhaps the inaugural day first began to take on its present complexion with the advent of President James Madison. People thronged into the capital and the first inaugural ball was held. President Monroe, who followed him, gave us another precedent—the presence of the marine band. But it was left to Martin Van Buren to bear a unique honor. He was the first American-born citizen to hold that office. Up until his time the Presidents were all former British subjects.

Because of the war and a desire to emphasize the "fourth-term" as little as possible, the 1945 inauguration ceremonies of Franklin D. Roosevelt took place on the White House portico instead of on a platform on the east front of the Capitol building which is now accepted as the usual location.

No outgoing President will ride with Harry Truman this year, but one ex-President may attend the ceremonies. The warm feeling which exists between the former small-town boy from Missouri and the wealthy retired engineer will undoubtedly assure Herbert Hoover a place of honor if he wishes to accept it.

WHAT ARE 1949 FARM PROSPECTS

In a front page farm outlook story in its January 1, 1949, edition, Prairie Farmer predicts that there will be some drop in income but no serious collapse.

Recommendations for various farm operations are given in detail. They include the following advice:

Feed about the usual number of beef cattle and plan your operations to sell good and choice cattle in late summer or early fall. Build up breeding operations to make best use of pasture and forage.

Demand for dairy products will be strong, so hold good cows and heifers even if they fall in value. Avoid buying high-priced cows unless you can pay cash for them.

As for hogs, push early spring litters fast to 225 pounds for the early market. Feed a good balanced ration. It's a good idea to breed more gilts for late spring farrowing.

Order chicks early to have pullets in production for the peak egg price season in the fall. Feed well, cut production costs, and improve egg quality.

In the grain picture, cut wheat acreage, keep up soybean acreage if possible, and hold your corn under loan or purchase contract. If you will need corn for summer and early fall feeding, buy it this winter.

Expert to Address Airplane Spray Men

Frank Irons, nationally-known expert on airplane dust and spray problems, has accepted an invitation to speak on this topic at the Commercial Spray Operators' short course January 12-14, 1949 at the University of Illinois, Urbana.

Irons will discuss the latest improvements in airplanes and equipment possibly including helicopters, announces H. B. Petty, extension entomologist and program chairman. He will have an hour and 45 minutes, with time included for questions from the floor.

Irons is senior agricultural engineer with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and is stationed at Toledo, Ohio. He is a veteran of some 10 years experience in solving airplane dust and spray problems.

Irons also is scheduled to lead the session on mist blowers, fog generators, and other new types of ground spraying equipment, Petty said. He will be present for January 13 and 14.

for sure, and possibly for the first day, January 12, also.

"We feel fortunate to have a man so well qualified as Frank Irons on the program," Petty remarked. "He certainly can give airplane men the best information available to answer their problems."

The sprayers' conference, first of its kind in Illinois, is open to both airplane and ground operators, and there is no registration fee. It is sponsored jointly by the College of Agriculture, Institute of Aeronautics, and State Natural History Survey. It was organized to help the best information at hand to help both ground and airplane sprayers do a better job of controlling insect pests and plant diseases. Their art in this task is becoming more and more important.

In loving memory of our dear son Howard who passed away January 2, 1937.

There is a home not made by hands beyond its golden door,
Awaits the one who's now away,
Not dead, just gone before,
And in that home not made by hands,
The Master will prepare

We'll meet our loved one there.

Electronics Cures Nyctophobia*

MIDDLETOWN, CONN.—Fear of darkness* will not disturb this mother and child when they return home from late shopping. Their light watchman automatically turned on the house lights at dusk. The Light Watchman is a miniature electronic control that plugs into any electric outlet and turns house lights on or off according to the degree of outside darkness. Its manufacturer, Ripley Company, Inc., here, states that it will also control lighting in dark hallways, garages, entrances, stairways, yards and night lights in stores. According to its manufacturer, it is being produced to sell so inexpensively that it is within every homemaker's budget.

Annual Meeting of Lake-Cook Co. Jan. 15

The Board of Directors of the Lake-Cook Farm Supply announces the Twenty-first Annual Meeting of the Stockholders to be held at the Elia Township high school, Lake Zurich on Saturday, January 15, 1949. Due to the many business details to be taken care of that day all those interested are urged to be there promptly at 10:45 a.m. when the meeting is called to order by Ed Harris, President of the Company.

This meeting will be of unusual interest to all the farmers of Lake and Cook Counties as the Board of Directors in a special meeting held recently reviewed the most successful year that the Company had ever experienced and voted to declare dividends amounting to approximately $90,000, which will be paid out that day. Besides this big dividend payment, interesting reports covering nearly a million and three-quarters dollar volume which was done, as well as plans for the large expansion, which is taking place will be discussed.

The entertainment Committee has been fortunate in being able to obtain W. B. Peterson, Director of Sales, of the Illinois Farm Supply Company, as the main speaker of the day. Other attractive entertainment will be on the program.

The famous "Lake-Cook Lunch", which has become a standard of free lunches in the territory, will again be served by the Company employees. Everyone is urged to attend and everything is free.

CHOOSE COLOR THEME

CHICAGO — Electric blue was chosen as the theme wardrobe color for a woman with ash blonde hair, blue eyes and fair complexion by State Street Fashion bureau experts. To further enhance this combination of bright blue hostess pajamas and blonde personal coloring, fashion experts suggested geranium red as the best background color for a "hostess chair" to bring out the highlights in her hair and the blue of her eyes.

So this is HOUSEKEEPING

You could have knocked me over with an orange blossom—I was that pleasantly surprised! We went to a housewarming recently for some friends who had been vainly searching in quest of an apartment large enough for their family of four. The way they solved their problem has me green-eyed with envy. Their new address?—The Sun Super "6." That's right—a trailer coach! And the name means what it says: the new Streamline coach is built for a family of six with room to spare.

Their caravan-design home has a striking exterior built with an eye toward durability inside. The appointments are smart and modern from the beautiful hardwood panels (housing, for instance, four full-length wardrobes) to 13 windows with venetian blinds. In-laid asphalt tile throughout is a joy to behold.

The kitchen is a bride's delight with one piece stainless steel sink, overhead cabinets for lots of storage space and an oven-type stove. There's even a six cubic foot refrigerator.

One of the features that really sold our friends on their home is the amazing convertible upholstered love seat dinette section which trades as dining space, beautiful lounge and comfortable double bed! Living room space with its double-duty couches is as gracious as you'll find. All this and a separate bedroom, too. The bedroom boasts a full-size bed, box spring and mattress, one of the coach's two chests of drawers with clothes hamper combined and a spacious linen or utility cabinet. The lavatory adjoins the bedroom and both wash bowl and separate shower provide hot and cold water.

My fresh-air friend husband really got excited about the coach's ventilating system. As he explained it, a series of ducts keeps fresh air circulating through the coach—even through the wardrobe cabinets. He pointed out that the system eliminated any need for ventilators which are possible trouble spots for leakage. Circulating oil burner heat plus full insulation promises a cozy winter ahead.

In short, their new home is 35 feet of luxury on wheels with the whole U.S.A. as their doorman.

BASKETBALL

During the Christmas vacation the Orland Park Independent basketball team played in a tournament in Joliet.

They played the Hammond Mosse. Orland lead most of the time until the last few minutes of play when they were nosed out 49 to 45 in as thrilling a basketball game as you will ever see thus eliminating them from the tournament.

Orland returned to action Sunday, January 2 and defeated the Electro Motive division, a team from LaGrange.

This coming Sunday, Jan. 9, Orland will play the high flying Kings Sporting Goods store of Chicago. This team has very good backing and has many former high school stars from Englewood high, Tilden Tech and many other very good players.

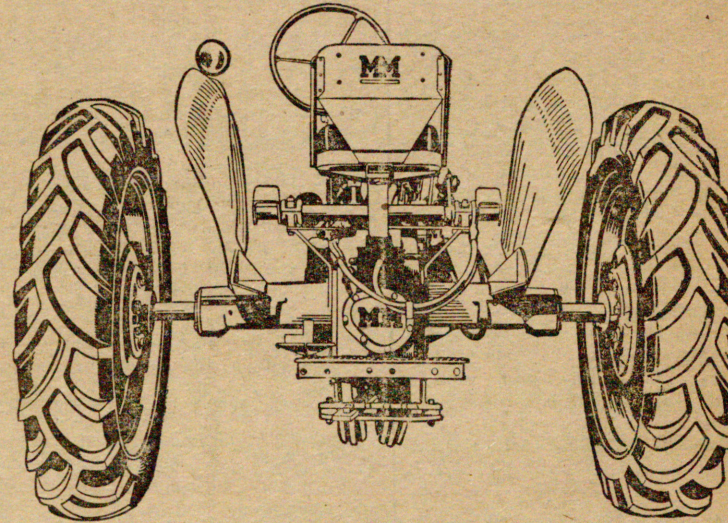

Orland is out to revenge a defeat acquired last season from Kings Sporting Goods. So come out and watch two good games. First game begins at 2 p.m.
